

Template - Supervised practice plan for grandparenting

For registration as a paramedic

Objectives

The supervised practice plan is an agreement between the Paramedicine Board of Australia (Board), the supervisor, and the supervisee that sets out:

- the objectives, levels, type and amount of supervision required, and
- how the supervision is to occur, as detailed in the Supervised Practice Framework for paramedics

The supervised practice plan should reflect a balance between the need for the supervision, the qualifications and experience of the supervisee, the role they are proposing to undertake, the organisation they are employed by and/or the role qualifications and experience of the supervisor.

Developing a supervised practice plan and setting reporting requirements

A supervised practice plan for grandparenting (SPPG) must be completed by the supervisee in consultation with the supervisors and or the employing organisation and submitted with an application for general registration.

All supervision should commence at the direct level of supervision and progress to indirect (present) and indirect (accessible) levels of supervision only when the supervisor/supervising organisation is satisfied that sufficient competency has been demonstrated by the supervisee (see Supervised Practice framework for paramedics). No remote level of supervision can be undertaken during a period supervised practice for the purposes of grandparenting without specific prior approval by the Board.

Reports are required:

- each time there is a change in the level of supervision, and
- every 6 months throughout the period of supervised practice, and
- at the end of the period of supervised practice, and
- any other time the supervisor determines it necessary to bring something to the Board's attention.

It is anticipated that the required period of supervision should be completed within a 12-24 month time frame. Failure to satisfactorily progress through the period of supervised practice or complete the supervised practice within 24 months without good reason may be grounds for the Board to withdraw the approval to undertake supervised practice for the purpose of grandparenting.

Content of a supervised practice plan for the purposes of grandparenting

The content of the SPPG should reflect the learning and development needs of the supervisee and should be consistent with the Supervised practice framework for paramedics (interim), Professional capabilities for registered paramedics (interim) and the Code of conduct for paramedics (interim).

The Board must approve a supervised practice plan or any changes to an existing plan before the supervised practice proposed can commence.

Who is responsible for the supervised practice plan?

It is the responsibility of the supervisee to make sure the reporting requirements are met as agreed in the SPPG. However, the supervisor or supervising organisation also has a responsibility to adhere to the agreement they have entered into, and to appropriately oversee and report on the supervisee's practice.

Different supervision arrangements

The Board appreciates that there may need to be a flexible approach to supervision arrangements. For example, a SPPG may involve:

- one supervisor in a single workplace setting, or
- one supervisor across a variety of workplace settings, or
- more than one supervisor, in the same setting (one principal and up to two secondary supervisors), or
- a supervising organisation who nominates a principal supervisor to oversee the supervision but whom can delegate in accordance with their ethical and professional obligations as set out in the interim code of conduct for paramedics

Regardless, at the end of the supervision period, the principal supervisor will be responsible for submitting the supervisors' reports as required in the SPPG.
